

Life is not always a smooth bowl of pudding, and leadership is no exception.

There are days when, as a leader, you step into the office primed for a gourmet experience only to find that the menu features nothing but custard—thick, lumpy custard that you're somehow expected to rake smoothly. You know, those days when the proverbial hits the fan, and everything goes, well, custardy.

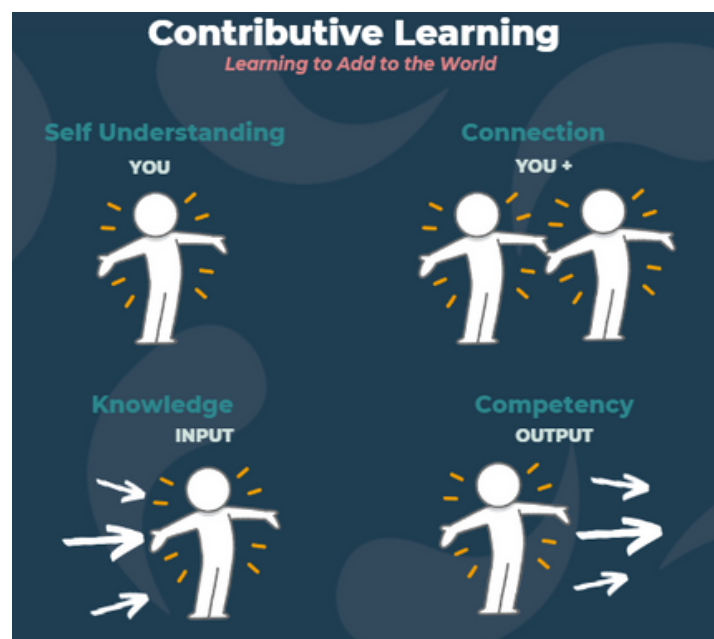

A Leader's Guide to Gracefully Skating on Lumpy Custard

A humorous (yet serious) glance at some coping strategies for those days when chaos reigns and the pudding hits the fan by TLF Founder, Joanne McEachen.

Contribution is the ultimate application of learning, and the action most tied to our sense of well-being.

info@thelearnerfirst.com

Leaders Learning First

CHECK OUT THESE CONTRIBUTIONS

These are articles, media, resources, etc. our team have come across that have #contributed to our learning and wanted to share them with you!

Deb Dunstone • 1st
CEO The Learner First | Proud Educator | Globa...
3w •

'Leaders Learning First' is our leadership investment program for changing classroom practice. Stephen Bell and Maree Neilsen enjoyed the privilege of working with the Balmoral Team last Friday. A fabulous leadership retreat.

Congratulations Timothy Barraud for leading the learning and investing in the team.

Timothy Barraud • 2nd
Strategic leader and passionate edup... + Follow
3w •

"The quality of the school cannot exceed the quality of its leadership or teacher expertise" that's why it's vital we invest in ourselves to elevate ...more

Principal Timothy Barraud and his leadership team from Balmoral State High School in Brisbane, AU have partnered with TLF to "invest in themselves to elevate Balmoral and create improved coherence."

Defining Education 4.0: A Taxonomy for the Future of Learning.

Inquiry Based Learning: What Happens When We Put Kids in Control of Their Learning.
CASEL Blog Post

Navigating the New Frontier of Education Leadership.
Blog by TLF

Guiding Principles for Contributive Leaders

- Successful change is process driven.
- Effective leaders set direction, develop people, & measure progress
- Leadership development must be job embedded, at the point of need, ongoing, & evidence based.
- Learning is a lifelong journey of understanding who we are, how we fit into the world, and how we can contribute in relevant and meaningful ways.

Building Capacity + Enacting the Work = Contributive Leadership

Contact us today to learn more about our Leadership Series!

info@thelearnerfirst.com

FOLLOW US

THE Learner First™